

For those convinced that Burke didn't do it, what's the biggest reason?(self.JonBenetRamsey)

Since the comment that you replied to, which I was also trying to reply to, must have been removed in the past 10 minutes, I'm going to agree with you and drop my reply here—just because the DNA issue has been coming up more and more on the sub recently.

DNA didn't exonerate the Ramseys. Mary Lacy claimed that it exonerated them in 2008. However, additional information came out in 2016 stating otherwise—and indicating that Lacy's office knew otherwise before she chose to publicly clear the Ramseys. The DNA profile that Lacy claimed was from a single unknown male was likely a mix from at least two people, not counting JBR.

From a 2016 story on it (linked below):

In fact, those experts said the evidence showed that the DNA samples recovered from the long johns came from at least two people in addition to JonBenet — something Lacy's office was told, according to documents obtained by 9NEWS and the Camera, but that she made no mention of in clearing the Ramseys.

That is them covering for their original sin which is not working this case properly from the get go and I'm not reading some crap from "Iamright.Com". Already wasted 30 seconds on this ridiculousness.

"Iamright.Com"? The site is for an NBC affiliate out of Colorado. And you don't need to be rude about it. You've certainly wasted more than 30 seconds of everyone else's time on this thread by posting multiple comments telling us that we're all stupid and wrong, while failing to provide any sources or or engage in any meaningful discussion on the matter. Instead, you dropped your own "Iamright.com" claiming that DNA exonerated the Ramseys, which has since been removed, and have insulted anyone who's disagreed with you.

NP. I left the group once I saw what you were all about. I'm not interested in conversation with people with limited mental capacity.
